Convention Moves For Second Front—Bridges Declares Shipping Is Adequate

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Resumption of conferences designed to effect "organic unity" between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations moved a step nearer today.

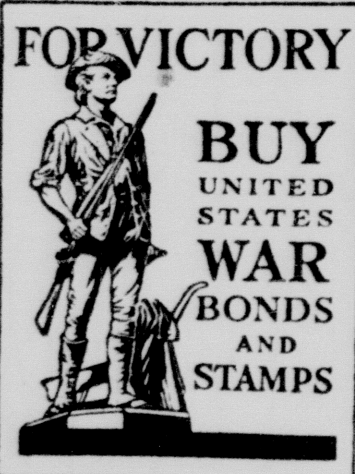

Speedy action on the conferences seemed assured as William Green, AFL president, accepted the olive branch tendered last week by Philip Murray, CIO president, and promised "ultimate success" for the forthcoming negotiations.

The conferences, Green said, would not only settle the "strike" within labor's ranks but would greatly aid the nation's war effort. Green's acceptance of the resumption of negotiations was announced after his arrival in Chicago yesterday for the regular quarterly conference of the AFL executive council.

Murray also was in Chicago to attend the 9th annual convention of the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers, CIO, now in session. The convention unanimously endorsed the peace (Continued On Page Fifteen)

As Blaze Swept World's Biggest Circus

The smoking ruins of the huge menagerie tent of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus are shown, above, just after a sudden blaze swept through the canvas structure, pitched on Cleveland's lake front. It is estimated 35 valuable animals, including performing elephants, which were in the tent at the time, succumbed in the fire or were so badly burned they had to be destroyed. The bodies of three dead camels are seen in foreground, lower photo. The blaze occurred just two hours before the scheduled start of the afternoon performance.

Strike Possible Unless Workers Get Wage Raises

Union Head Of Westinghouse Warns Trouble Ahead Unless Boost Is Granted

COMPANY OFFICIALS DECLINE COMMENT

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt and others in Washington today were advised that unless the scheduled wage raise for employees of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company becomes effective August 15, "it is easily possible there might be a work stoppage of holiday."

John A. Metcalfe, president of Local 601, CIO United Electric, Radio and Machine Workers, said: "We are hopeful of a settlement without any interruption of production but, in view of advices from our international union headquarters in New York, it appears the results of our negotiations since last February may be upset and 65,000 workers in Westinghouse plants here and elsewhere may be adversely affected."

Decline Comment
Company officials, advised of the union's action, declined comment.

Members of Local 601, largest union of Westinghouse employees, a week ago voted to accept a wage increase of 5 1/2 cents-an-hour for men and 7 1/2 cents-an-hour for women employees. The company has until August 15 to ratify the new contract.

Metcalfe said that "some quarrel appears to have developed between the office of price administration and the conciliation division, U. S. Department of Labor. It may be that Mr. Henderson is apprehensive that a wage increase might result in higher prices. It is necessary for us to prepare for whatever action may prove to be necessary."

District 1, United Mine Workers Ask Lewis To Negotiate For Wage Boost

(International News Service)
SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 5.—Officials of District No. 1, United Mine Workers, today were drafting a formal petition to U. M. W. President John L. Lewis in a move to obtain a wage increase for the anthracite industry's 100,000 workers.

District executive board members said there was growing pressure for reopening of negotiations with the operators for a wage increase to meet the cost of living. The union's resolution will be forwarded to the International U. M. W. executive board.

Union leaders recalled that substantial wage increases were obtained by U. M. W. during World War I when the agreement with the operators was reopened twice for the consideration of upward wage revisions.

Senate Asks Advice On "Flying Box Cars"

By ELLIOTT HAYES
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—With President Roosevelt leaving final word on building of cargo aircraft up to military leaders, a Senate subcommittee today planned to ask high Army and Navy men if some combat plane production cannot be sacrificed to "flying freight trains."

Call Experts
Sen. Josh Lee (D) of Oklahoma, chairman, said that the following experts were slated to testify also on the possibility of building giant cargo aircraft in shipyards made idle by lack of steel plate:
Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces.
Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Navy bureau of aeronautics.

Brig. Gen. Harold L. George, head of the Army air transport command.
A request to appear also has been sent to Tom Girdler, widely known steel man and now head of the Consolidated and Vultee Aircraft companies, Lee said.
Girdler is on the West Coast and probably will not appear before next Monday.

Meanwhile, Lee said, he and Sen. Edwin Johnson (D) of Colorado, will try to find out from the two generals and Admiral Towers just how many additional cargo-carrying aircraft the services need.
The Germans, Lee pointed out, devote 10 per cent of military plane production to cargo craft.

CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE IF BRITISH REFUSE

(International News Service)
BOMBAY, Aug. 5.—A resolution was submitted today to the working committee of the All-India Congress party which provides that once India is granted complete independence the provisional government would "wholeheartedly and unreservedly declare itself alongside the United Nations."
If the resolution is adopted and the provisions conformed with, it was said, the new Indian government would "agree to meet the Japanese or any other aggressor with armed resistance."

Committee Meets
The new resolution was submitted to the committee meeting to discuss Friday's general meeting at which the congress will be asked to approve Mohandas K. Gandhi's resolution calling for nationwide civil disobedience if the British refuse to accept the congress invitation to get out of India.

Among subjects taken up at the 90-minute session was world reaction to the Gandhi proposals. The committee was reported to regard opinion abroad favorable to the full text of the resolution which was drawn up by the committee at Wardha.

If the British government does not accede to the congress demands for full and immediate political independence, the committee considers that Gandhi has a definite mandate to proceed with his plan. In that case, it was reported, the congress will have no alternative but to take steps to put the program of civil disobedience into effect.

SENATE ASKS ADVICE ON 'FLYING BOX CARS'

by the United Nations was emphasized when the President, at a press conference, said that Army and Navy have been working on a cargo plane program for several months. The President was blunt in his admission that the government would give anything to have a great many more "flying box cars," but asserted that Peter could not be robbed to pay Paul.

At previous sub-committee hearings Lee has tried to find out these things:

1. What type of cargo plane is best suited to the dual purpose of supplying the United Nations with civilian as well as military needs.
2. How much aircraft production can be devoted to cargo plane construction.
3. What other plants and facilities can be utilized for building cargo planes.
4. When more cargo planes are built, what proportion will be required for strictly military purposes and what proportion for replacing merchant ships.

Would Welcome It

Col. Hugh J. Kerr, retired, former chief of the Army Air Corps staff, told Lee the Army would "shout with joy" if military plane production were devoted 90 per cent to combat planes and 10 per cent to military cargo planes and troop transports.

Heretofore, the United Nations were sorely pressed for enough combat type military planes. Now, however, production of British and American planes is believed to be far ahead of combined Axis production, and is way ahead of the supply of critical materials.

PARATROOPS DROP BACK OF RED LINE OPEN NEW WEDGES

successive day; and on one sector of the Tsimlyansk front on the Don River between fallen Rostov and Stalingrad to the northeast.

Some of the paratroops were surrounded and killed. But with the German Luftwaffe appearing in steadily increasing numbers, the paratroops were found ways of piercing the Russian lines by leaping aboard their whiplike tanks the moment they were grounded and rushing into the fray.

Usually, these aerial tank units are dropped near a populated point or a railway station to await the arrival of the main enemy forces. But often they plummet into the great center of a populated area, creating panic among the inhabitants and necessitating immediate diversion of Soviet troops to that particular area.

Leaves Gap

On occasions, this apparently has left a gap through which the enemy is able to pour.

The German steam-roller, forging ahead rapidly southwest of Salsk, caused the Soviet forces to drop back in the Belaya-Glina area, 50 miles to the southwest, for the second successive day.

The Russians also fell back on one sector of the Tsimlyansk area, on the Don River midway between fallen Rostov and Stalingrad to the northeast.

In the area of Belaya-Glina, the Soviet high command said in a communique at noon, "our troops withdrew to new positions after heavy fighting."

The reverses suffered by the Soviets at Tsimlyansk were disclosed in a statement saying:

"Our troops withdrew to a new position. Defensive battles against tanks and infantry continue."

Reds Hold

At Katskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad where it was previously announced that the Russians had suffered a new set-back, the Red army again appeared to be holding.

"Four enemy attacks in the Katskaya area were repulsed," the communique said. "Stubborn fighting is going on."

The forces of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko held firmly, however, on the westernmost front in the Caucasus around Kuschchenskaya, 50 miles south of Rostov, where it was announced that 3,000 Nazis had been slain during frustrated assaults and through Soviet counter-attacks.

The majority of the German casualties around Kuschchenskaya were inflicted in a surprise charge by Don and Kuban Cossacks.

Another 550 Nazis were reported killed on a different sector of the same front.

The tragedy of divided authority is that officials think they are being efficient because they are so busy at failing.

Gets Protests

Thus, he indicated that prosecution of the war comes first. Mr. Roosevelt struck at reports that too much time now has been spent on trying the saboteurs, who landed in this country from German submarines in mid-June with enough TNT and fire bombs to set off more than 300 explosions.

The commission, which sat for a total of 20 days—18 of them consumed by taking evidence and hearing the confessions of the spies—has received many letters protesting against the protracted proceedings. Many of the letters demanded that the saboteurs be shot first, tried later.

But Mr. Roosevelt declared that the United States is a nation of law. He said it was important to preserve democracy by legal means. That, he explained, is the American process of justice.

By that he indicated that the country can well afford to give the saboteurs a few days more of life, if they are ordered executed, in order to preserve American legal procedure.

Some mighty sloppy driving goes on in this city. This morning one of the Pa Newc family was almost run down crossing Jefferson street, the widest in the city, by a careless motorist who cut the inside corner, while making a left turn. Number furnished on request. It has been observed lately that a great many other motorists make right and left turns of streets, or into driveways, without ever looking back in their rear vision mirrors or signalling they are going to make a turn.

ASK TAX CUSHION FOR CORPORATIONS

war either to pay severance pay to employees or to convert to peacetime production also gained headway.

Sen. Walter F. George (D) Ga., declared that both proposals are sound and should be enacted into law if it can be done without upsetting the tax collection system.

Sen. Prentiss Brown (D) Mich., suggested that Congress might follow a provision written years ago into a banking bill which he piloted through the Senate.

"We provided that in the case of insolvent banks there would be a tax credit or remission, with a provision that if the banks paid out more than 100 per cent to stockholders the government would be reimbursed," he said.

"We may be able to defer collection of taxes where high tax rates make it difficult or impossible to pay debts. The Reconstruction Finance corporation might finance the companies."

How Much Should A Funeral Cost?

This question can only be answered by the desires of each individual family. There are many styles and grades of caskets.

Our own records show that approximately 15% of our patrons spend less than $150, and about as many spend more than $600. Nearly one-half range between $250 and $400. This is perhaps the best guide since it reflects the judgment of local families. At the Boyd Home for Funerals the prices quoted are for the complete funeral. Each family may select as they desire. We invite frank discussion of funeral service and its cost.

VITAL SURPLUS

IN HIS invasion of Russia, Hitler with a southern front now far in advance of that in the north, in general has been following what is termed the black soil belt of that expansive land. Including Bessarabia, the Ukraine, the Don valley and the central and lower Volga, the black soil region contains 260,000,000 acres, or twice the area of Montana.

With humus varying in depth from several inches to three or four feet, it is one of the great wheat growing regions of the world. It is either occupied by Axis armies or threatened by them.

According to reports of many observers, Russia has developed other wheat growing regions to the east of Moscow, some of them in Siberia where spring wheat thrives. But so far as the outside world knows these regions are still relatively unimportant compared with the cereal output of the black soil region.

It is doubtful if Hitler's occupation of the Ukraine and the Don valley will bring him any large quantities of wheat this year. Russia had removed the farm machinery, most of the agricultural workers retired before the invasion and little of the crop that is raised will get back to Germany. But Russia's large urban population which has always depended upon the black soil region for most of its food is likewise deprived of this source.

With Hitler carving out Russia's bread basket, the wheat accumulations of the countries having surpluses begin to take on more importance in relation to the war. Russia will need food, there is nothing that can be shipped more readily than wheat and before many months have passed large amounts of America's unprecedented store will be destined for the land of the Muscovites.

FUTURE WHEAT NEED

For years Broomhalls Corn Trade Review has preserved a calm, conservative view of the whole wheat situation, tempered always by a world-wide view. It is therefore of interest to know that Broomhalls currently has no disposition to be blue about the heavy surplus which the United States has accumulated.

In its latest comment, Broomhalls refers to the American intention to hold a reserve against the possibility of famine conditions in after-the-war Europe. As to the export trade by America after the war the report says: "Whether this trade will be in competition with Canada, Argentina, Australia and Russia, or whether an agreement will be signed limiting exports to an agreed figure can not yet be determined."

"Always, during the years of agricultural reconstruction in Europe there will be an abnormal demand for overseas wheat and world reserves, including the huge United States supply, should be needed."

PEARLS TO LEMONS

That a government can acquire gems and later discover that they are lemons on its hands came to light in the death of Louis Cartier, grandson of the founder of the famous jewelry firm. The Cartier firm was in Paris. The grandson ended his days in New York.

Louis Cartier handled the Thiers three-strand pearl necklace transaction. This was originally made for the wife of the first president of France. Upon her death the pearls became the property of the Louvre. After they had been exhibited there for forty years the French government discovered that the pearls were deteriorating. They were sold to Cartiers for 15,000,000 francs.

Eventually the pearls were resold to an American buyer, reported to have paid $1,000,000 for them. Cartiers in New York tried to sell them for the American owner, with what success does not appear. Several people wanted to buy the pearls, among the prospective purchasers having been the Queen Marie of Rumania, but she as well as others backed away from the price.

OPTIMUM WORK HOURS

Employee fatigue, a vital element in production, has grown in importance as the war schedules of industry in the United States have expanded. Under government urging plants have been operating twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. With a shortage of skilled labor this has meant longer hours every day of the week for many workers. There is no question that after months of high-pressure employment they are beginning to show the effects of the strain.

Knowing from experience that the consequence of excessive hours over long periods is loss of efficiency, employers have manifested concern, but there is little or nothing they can do about the matter. The seriousness of the developing situation is given official recognition by the statement issued jointly by eight government agencies including the War Production Board, asking war industries to adopt the forty-eight hour schedule of six eight-hour days. The plea also extends to government establishments.

Most work studies agree that the recommended limitation on hours represents the general optimum for sustained efficiency in the average plant. Every effort should be exerted to get that. Putting a stop to labor prating through offering heavy overtime payments, referred to in the agencies' statement, would help and doubtless there are readjustments that could be made to ease conditions. There is also the question of requiring time and a half pay after forty-eight, instead of forty, hours.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CHILDREN TEMPTED TO BE DECEITFUL

A Very Conscientious mother writes:

"Dear Dr. Myers:—Your column has been a great help to me in training my little son, approaching his fourth birthday. Recently he has acquired the habit of sneaking and I am entirely at a loss to know how to handle it.

"As an example, I took him and his baby brother to a clinic where the children are given candy. This is in the morning just before his lunch. He used to be very good at saving it until after lunch, but now sneaks out of my sight to eat it while I am occupied with the little one. Should I relax the rule and let him eat it even though lunch time is so close?

Habit Of Sneaking

"At home he has formed the habit of sneaking gum or candy when he is supposed to be napping and I am busy with the washing, gardening, etc. I can't possibly take time out to drop my washing and watch him. He always gets candy twice a day after meals and gum several times a day upon request. I have punished him by not having candy and gum in the house for a long time, but this does not correct the sneaking, as he takes fruit, crackers or anything he can get his hands on and sneaks them into bed as soon as he knows I am out. He goes to great pains to sneak out of the house when I have forbidden it or even when, by just lacing a shoe or putting on a coat and cap, he would be free to go.

"Please help me. A self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it is enclosed."

It is asking too much to expect a four-year-old not to immediately eat candy given him. In the situation I believe you should have let him keep the candy and eat it.

So also it is too much to expect that little child not to sneak gum or candy at naptime while you are not near him, especially since you have made an issue of it. Then the younger child is a big factor in the picture. You probably compare them, and this older child probably supposes the baby is loved more than he is. My bulletin on "Jealousy" which I enclose might help you.

Clearly the temptation for him to sneak things is very great. Your problem is to remove the temptation. If you must be away at his naptime either let him have whatever he wants to eat or place certain things where he can not get them. It is possible with careful training to have this matter settled in a few weeks.

Encouraging Deceit
To forbid a child what he can get and is likely to get when you are not right there is about the best possible way to practice him in deceit. Trials and punishments for his sneaking only encourage him in lying and challenge him to more deceit.

You and Dad should try to have many good times with this lad and be to generous with affection for him. I am also enclosing my special bulletin on "Honesty and Truthfulness," thinking you might wish to read further on this matter.

MORE PROGRESS

Sing if you will of the beauty of spring,

Sing of the birds and the pleasure they bring,

Sing of the hyacinth, sing of the rose,

Here's a song which I rise to propose:

There's a song I am happy to pen:

Ellen Elizabeth's smiling at men!

Who can explain it and make it quite clear?

Still not quite ended the child's second year,

Still just a baby in bonnets and frocks,

One that her mother to Slumber-land rocks,

Yet—and I grin as I write it again:

Ellen Elizabeth's smiling at men!

Gathering wisdom not taught at a school,

Knows men are simple and easy to fool,

Knows we give in when the women-folks fuss;

Knows there's a difference 'twixt females and us;

Knows how to work us and also just when:

Ellen Elizabeth's smiling at men!

Knows where the money is; knows where to go,

Certain of 'yes' when the women say 'No!'

Not two years old and aware that we'll buy

Whatever she asks which the women deny,

What will she cost us at nine years or ten?

Ellen Elizabeth's smiling at men!

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 8:10. Sun rises tomorrow 6:02.

We made a mistake in quoting Scripture the other day when we spoke about tires being mentioned in the Bible. Mrs. Jessie Manning of 1906 Hamilton street says it can be found right in Isaiah 4:18. Thanks.

Very few people are cowardly enough to admit they are spies.

Nothing seems to stop people from getting married. It's often the last thing they do before they die.

BEN FRANKLIN'S APOLOGY

Ben Franklin used to get into unpleasant situations because of opinions he printed. At one period of his life he was so frequently censured and condemned that he wrote a rather lengthy apology to use whenever accused of offending someone. Like most of the things he wrote, it contained much wisdom and it included this old fable:

"A certain well-meaning man and his son were traveling towards a market town with an ass which they had to sell. The road was bad; and the old man therefore rid, but the son went a-foot.

"The first passenger they met asked the father if he was not ashamed to ride by himself and suffer the poor lad to wade along through the mire, this induced him to take up his son behind him.

"He had not traveled far when he met others, who said, 'They are two unmerciful lubbers to get both on the back of that poor ass, in such a deep road.' Upon hearing this, the old man got off and let his son ride alone.

"The next they met (called the lad a graceless, rascally young jackanapes, to ride in that manner through the dirt, while his father trudged along on foot, and they said the old man was a fool for suffering it. He then bid his son come down, and walk with him, and they traveled on leading the ass by the halter till they met another company who called them a couple of senseless blockheads for going both on foot in such a dirty way, when they had an empty ass with them, which they might ride upon.

"The old man could bear no longer. 'My son,' said he, 'it grieves me much that we cannot please all these people. Let me throw the ass over the next bridge, and be no further troubled with him.'

It is sitting next to a window, it is courteous to consult the persons surrounding you—those in front of, beside and behind you—before opening or closing it.

Should the window prove too heavy for your strength, ask the assistance of the conductor or the porter, rather than that of a passenger. And don't forget your "thank you." No tip should be given for such service.

AS PER ORDERS

A traveling man stayed one night at a small town, one of those places where trains don't really stop, but merely hesitate. Its lone hotel, opposite the railway station, was kept by an aged blockhead who was proprietor, clerk, cook, waiter, bellhop and everything.

"Call me for the 3:15 train," ordered the guest, retired early to sleep soundly until awakened by a loud hammering on his door.

"Hey, boss," came a voice outside. "didn't you call a left a call fo' de 3:15 train?"

"Sure," gasped the roomer, sleepily. "Well, sah," was the response. "she's at de station now."

And by the way, there are many women smart enough not to get married to have to bother with a man.

Anyhow, the gals are not wearing much less clothing on account of the war.

Russell Sage, the financier, hated lawsuits and did everything possible to avoid them. One day he laid a case before his attorney. When he had finished, the lawyer said he would take it.

"It's an ironical case," exclaimed the attorney, enthusiastically. "We can't possibly lose."

"Can't lose, eh?" said Sage. "No, absolutely no," assured the lawyer.

"Then," said the financier, "I guess we won't sue."

"But, why not?" he was asked. "Because it wasn't my side of the case I laid before you," explained Sage. "It was my opponent's."

Peace Feelers Are Welcomed As Good Sign
Believe Hitler Ready To Suggest War End
Will Present Terms Favorable To Germany

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Predictions are heard that Herr Hitler will be putting out peace feelers before this year's end. Nobody surmises that he'll suggest terms except of a nature very favorable to the Reich. Still, there are prophets who forecast that he will propose abandonment of a few small territorial gains made by the Nazis, in comparison with their status before the war started. That is to say, the notion is that their purpose will be to give the impression that they're prepared to promise certain inducements to the United Nations to quit fighting 'em long enough to enable 'em to assimilate the bulk of what they've got now.

Possibly two or three hints of this sort have come, roundabout, from Berlin.

There isn't a chance that the democracies will pay the least attention to 'em in an affirmative way. Nevertheless they're welcome, as indicating a loosening of the Axis tie-up and a realization by the Reich's leadership that now is the time for it to consolidate its position, or it isn't likely to remain intact indefinitely.

The Fuehrer himself isn't given credit for that much sanity but the abject of his advisers are.

It's hard to see 'em overrun naturally are assessed, not as an asset, but as a liability to him. Italy's referred to as more than too Germanly lukewarm to count. Japan's believed to be virtually anti-German, otherwise than as a Jan conceiver in connection with Nippon's plans for a thrust by Nippon against the Muscovites.

Hitler Should Know—
The best guess is that Adolf, if he has any sense at all, must already be aware that Italy's a wobbly reed, that Russia still is a danger, that Japan's a worse one, potentially, that China's got 'em swamped from the standpoint of population, if nothing else, that Britain and the American hemisphere generally never will quit fighting him, and that pretty soon will be a good juncture for him to talk overtures, while he seems to be pretty formidable.

The question is—when peace talk starts—then what?

The German says Hitler alone, they're Germans, too. The Italians, ditto, aren't exclusively Mussolini. State Secretary Cordell Hull has emphasized that the world's next peace must be INTERNATIONAL. Does that mean that Germany and Italy must be in on it on a fair percentage basis? After the fashion in which they're faced for Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini it'll be difficult, but maybe not impossible.

Japan'll be harder, not because of any individual, but because of its crazy militarists.

China'll be o.k.

So will the western American world.

The Axis conquered countries will be pie.

But that peace conference?

According to Secretary Hull, it's got to provide international economic security. Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's lord privy seal, agrees.

Now the program is.

Making It Stick
When those peace-makers get together, will they be able to concur on a bargain that'll stick?

It'll suit the victors, but will it suit the vanquished? The prospective victors think it will.

The issue has a lot to do with our own internal economies after the war. The issue whether or not we'll have domestic economies in peace days is at stake. Last time we didn't do it, and it raised economic headaches.

If these economists are good for a nickel's worth, they'll have an opportunity to demonstrate it.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

(International News Service Staff Writer)
There must be some better reason for women wearing slacks than the reasons we've seen.

So many styles are founded on history we thought we would nibble on precedent at the public library.

We said to the information clerk "have you anything on women in slacks?" He said no—and they haven't got anything on me either.

Then we started to make a personal survey. We approached one woman and said "pardon me madam—could you tell us why you are wearing slacks?"

She said "my husband gets dressed first in the morning and he's near-sighted."

Slacks have certainly changed things. Now on a windy day, men stand on street corners and watch old newspapers blow.

The woman next door wanted slacks and her husband said "not while I'm conscious." When he came too, the tailor was sitting on his chest discussing materials with the little woman.

Thought for the day. Slack season for the women.

The World and the Mud Puddles

LAW BUSINESS IS DULL

It wasn't the morning of the first day of April—no, it wasn't April Fool's Day, but a very pleasant, sweet-talking lady made it her business one morning recently to hoax several lawyers in Minneapolis.

On this particular morning, between three and five o'clock, she called up as many lawyers devoted to the criminal practice in Minneapolis as she knew, or as someone else had informed her. She called them and told them that she had a very dear friend—one Jake Ginsburg, who had been arrested on a charge of robbery, and who was to be arraigned in a police court of Minneapolis that morning. She begged them, one and all, to assist her in defending her friend.

And one and all, these lawyers appeared looking for Jake, but neither the clerk of the court, nor the officers of the police department, knew anything about Jake; in fact, his name was not on the docket or on the police blotter. In fact, the cops had never heard of such a fellow.

The lawyers held a consultation. Not one of them had inquired of the young lady who she was or where she lived. All were so anxious to defend Jake and possibly earn a very good fee that they had not stopped to make any inquiries as to their "client." One of them declared that he had been aroused at three o'clock in the morning with this telephone call and he was so anxious to get back to bed and finish his sleep that he had done nothing more than record the fact that one Jake Ginsburg had been charged with robbery and was to be arraigned that morning at nine o'clock. The others, likewise, had been careless about inquiring as to who the sweet-talking lady was.

Now, these lawyers are not advertising this event, but some of them would not mind paying a reward to find out who that gal was.

When Mrs. Cecile M. Barnes of Chicago died recently, her will was found. It was written in poetry, and in verse. She left her $10,000 estate to her niece.

To quote part of it:

"I want to be ready, and so
Let's make it clear that Judy E. Courtney,

My niece, shall come by all things
That I may possess, be it more, be it less.

When life's time for me folds its wings
Sole executrix she, without bond,
I wish to make that very clear,
She'll do what is best; then my Soul shall rest in peace."

But added to the poetic will, in stern prose, was a codicil, dated just ten days before her death, directing that her estranged husband was to have "nothing belonging to me—not a penny nor token."

Perhaps it is quite right that Mrs. Barnes confined poetry only to the pleasant part of her will and that for the disagreeable afterthought she used the prose which is more appropriate for ill will and discord.

Somewhere there seems to be something of a poet in every human being and even the clumsiest has his poetic moments.

Mother Volga Calls Old Cossacks To War

Heroes Of Other Days Insist Upon Fighting Alongside Their Sons

(International News Service)

SOMEWHERE IN THE DON VALLEY, Aug. 5.—Impelled by the sole desire to drive the invader from their fatherland, thousands of old men, veterans, Cossacks whose gnarled hands have known only the plowshare in the last two decades of peace, are flocking to Stalingrad to fight alongside their sons.

From the villages of the Don and Kuban Valleys, these tough old timers streamed toward the battlefront in an unbroken line. Most of them served in Marshal Semyon Budenny's famous Cossack revolutionary cavalry when the Poles were swept back at Lwow and another Soviet column moved on Warsaw.

It is easy to wax romantic about these old codgers, who differ so greatly from their sons and yet resemble them so closely.

The Don Cossacks now in action throughout the battle area are young men trained for modern army life. They wear the picturesque Cossack cloaks, spurs and scarves, but beneath them are regular Red army uniforms. They have traditional Cossack sabers at their sides, but their main weapons are American-made Tommy-guns and two-man anti-tank rifles.

Their fathers, on the other hand, know nothing of modern warfare, but they are so toughened as the result of outdoor life on their collective farms and so determined in their quiet conviction that their own blood must mingle with their sons that there is no refusing them.

Almost invariably, these veterans are found physically acceptable for military service. No heroics mark their registration. They simply turn up in their old-time uniforms with heavily padded shoulders, their red and blue shoulder-length hoods and their curved swords with notification they act on that way to fight for Mother Volga and Father Don.

One wonders, of course, how many recruiting officers would have the courage to turn these applicants down. As revolutionary fighters, these men played a major role in creation of the Soviet Union, but before that for generations they were in the service of the Czars and Cossack Kunits were perhaps the most-fearful of all weapons.

In any case the old Cossacks are marching, their rich fields of grain left behind in the late summer sun.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Lieut. Commander John D. Bulkeley, intermediate motor torpedo boat commander, on Tuesday received from the hands of President Roosevelt the nation's highest honor for "extraordinary heroism, distinguished service and conspicuous gallantry above and beyond the call of duty"—the prized congressional medal of honor.

The president pinned the medal on the handsome naval hero in an informal ceremony in the executive offices with highest ranking officers of the navy looking on.

The citation for his exploits in Philippine waters between December 7, 1941, and April 10, 1942, as commander of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3 spoke for itself. It read:

"The remarkable achievement of Lieut. Com. Bulkeley's command in damaging or destroying a notable number of Japanese enemy planes, surface combatant and merchant ships, and in dispersing landing parties and land-based enemy forces during the four months and eight days of operation without benefit of repairs, overhaul or maintenance facilities for his squadron, is believed to be without precedent in this type of warfare."

"His dynamic forcefulness and daring in offensive action, his brilliantly planned and skillfully executed attacks, supplemented by an unique resourcefulness and ingenuity characterize him as an outstanding leader of men and a gallant and intrepid seaman."

"These qualities coupled with a complete disregard for his own personal safety reflect great credit upon him and the naval service."

Bulkeley was promoted from a lieutenant to lieutenant-commander following his exploits.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Aug. 5.—Dr. Suzanne Engelmann, distinguished European educator, will be visiting lecturer at Wilson college during the academic year 1942-43. President Paul Swain Havens announced.

Famed throughout pre-Hitler Europe in the field of language teaching, Dr. Engelmann is coming to Wilson under the guest scholar fund set up by the Wilson faculty and staff to bring to the campus and orient in American academic ways European scholars who have been forced to give up their careers in their native countries.

Hitler removed Dr. Engelmann, an adherent of Pastor Niemöller, from her post as principal of a Berlin school of girls in 1933 on charges of "political unreliability."

Horse To Replace State Police Car

Police Commissioner Adams Plans Use Of Horses Again If Cars Cannot Be Gotten

By JOHN PAGET
(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 5.—Horses will replace state police cars if the motorized equipment cannot be replaced under the rationing system, Motor Police Commissioner Lynn G. Adams revealed today.

"It would be pessimistic to say that we will be forced to use horses again very soon but we will if the need arises," Adams said. "The only drawback to using horses under present conditions is that it takes a car to catch a car and you can't do that with horses."

110 Horses
He explained that the state police now have more than 110 horses scattered through Pennsylvania at the 16 stations where troops are based. More horses could be bought if needed, he added.

"The horses we have now see only occasional duty such as handling crowds and riots," Adams said. "Anyone who has watched trained police horses working with unruly crowds—such as strikes—can appreciate their value. We can use horses effectively and when the number of cars decrease there may be a need in some sections that mounted patrols could fill."

Although the state police started to swing to automobiles and motorcycles more than 19 years ago and have streamlined the force with about 600 cars and 65 motorcycles, every state policeman must be an accomplished horseman before he is graduated from the "rookie" school at nearby Hershey.

Cars Wearing Out
Veteran state policemen point out that while the state motor police force is eligible for gasoline, cars, and tires under the rationing system, the police automobiles quickly wear out tires and engine parts not easily replaced—especially tires, of which there is an acute shortage.

When horses enabled the state police to cover their beats, the troops would ride a 30-mile patrol—despite the weather—and were required to stop in communities on their "beat" and have the postmasters or justices of the peace stamp their report to prove they had covered their assignment, Adams said.

Before the use of automobiles became widespread, Adams explained, horses were a big factor in aiding policemen to capture horse thieves which were as numerous then as car thieves are now.

Although the widespread use of horses may not be realized in the near future, despite rationing, veteran troopers point out that horses can be used effectively on routine patrols in sparsely settled and mountainous sections. Rugged mountain roads quickly damage tires, they emphasized, while a horse can cover such patrols with little effort and at a saving to the state in gasoline and tires—especially since the horses must be kept.

Tobacco Workers Get Minimum Rate

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—Two administrative wage orders, affecting Pennsylvania's tobacco workers, will become effective Monday, it was announced today by Frank J. G. Dorsey, regional director for the wage and hour division of the U. S. department of labor.

A minimum 40-cent-an-hour wage will be awarded cigar makers and manufacturers of cigarettes, snuff, chewing and smoking tobacco. Handers and stemmers of cigar leaf tobacco will receive a minimum of 33-cents an hour, Dorsey said.

Give 'Go' To Plan For Cargo Ships

Top Army, Navy Officials
Approve Aircraft, Sub
Experiments

By ELLIOT HAYES

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—High army and navy officials on Tuesday gave approval to experiments in building giant cargo aircraft and submarines to overcome merchant ship losses by Axis U-boat attacks.

The endorsements were given by undersecretary of war Robert P. Patterson and undersecretary of the navy James V. Forrestal before an executive session of the Senate Military Affairs subcommittee.

Both craft probably would be built in the yards of Henry J. Kaiser, west coast ship builder and of Andrew Jackson Higgins, hardhat New Orleans shipbuilder whose contract for 200 liberty vessels was recently cancelled by the maritime commission.

Announcement of the army and navy policy came from Senator Lee D. Okla, chairman of the subcommittee.

Lee did not state how soon actual construction of experimental craft would get under way but he did assert.

"The hearing was extremely satisfactory to the subcommittee."

It also was learned that the army and navy officers inclined to favor cargo aircraft smaller than the 70-ton Martin flying boat Mars because they felt that smaller craft could be put into production more quickly and would not require such extensive use of critical material. However, Grove Loening, aircraft designer for the War Production board, pointed out that aircraft of the Mars type could be built in shipyards more easily than any other type of flying ship.

The cargo submarines are the invention of Simon Lake, American inventor of the original submersible and former advisor to the German and Russian navies.

Both Higgins and Kaiser have said "we can and will build these submarines in our yards just as fast as we can build surface vessels, if not faster."

Lee did disclose that the whole program hinges on maintaining the proper balance of critical materials and that both army and navy intend to facilitate building of cargo craft of all types in a manner consistent with the proper use of strategic metals and supplies.

Forrestal and Patterson were called upon to testify in the drive to compel army and navy leaders to give full consideration to all new war ideas before they are rejected.

He told the boys that they should not develop into these types of animals as nobody liked them and they were unpopular around a group.

Exemptions Urged In New Tax Bill

Insurance Men Ask Exemption
On Income Tax For Premium Payments

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Senate finance committee on Tuesday received appeals for an amendment to the $6,271,000,000 war tax bill allowing income tax reductions for payment of life insurance premiums, retirement of debts and purchase of war bonds.

Committee members appeared almost unanimously in favor of granting relief where high income tax rates make it difficult to pay debts, but the plea for insurance preference aroused opposition.

John M. Witherspoon, Nashville, Tenn., president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, urged that a small deduction be allowed for payments on insurance premiums on insurance in effect before the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Restrict Insurance
"We are representing 65,000,000 policy holders," Witherspoon said. "With the increase in income tax rates and other obligations, including bond purchases, it will be impossible for many of this number to maintain their insurance."

"It seems to us wise to give relief to those who are siphoning off ordinary income for payment of life insurance premiums."

"Insurance is an investment isn't it?" asked Sen. Bailey (D-N.C.). "An endowment policy is but ordinary life is not," replied the witness.

"Insurance is an investment," maintained Bailey. "If we allow a deduction for insurance why not allow it for purchase of real estate?"

Sen. George, chairman of the committee, however, approved the suggestion.

"I think you are essentially sound on it in view of the high rates of tax," he stated.

Witherspoon suggested that the deduction be limited to $300 to $500 or a small percentage of income.

The committee also heard—with many members voicing approval—an appeal from former Governor W. P. Hobby of Houston, Tex.—asking for deductions for debt payment.

Restrict Business
He explained that many business firms having no more orders face a difficult period. Their business, he said, will be restricted instead of expanded, because of the decrease in the supply of civilian goods.

Many of these firms, he said, borrow for expansion.

rowed for expansion program in normal times. It is necessary, he said, to allow tax deductions for debt payments in order to allow this class of business to continue and thus preserve the economic structure of the nation.

The Senate finance committee was told that the House, in its eagerness to raise $6,271,000,000 in taxes, has included a provision in the war tax bill which would deal a blow to American business in foreign nations.

The House provision would repeal an exemption carried in tax laws since 1926 under which bona fide American residents of foreign countries are relieved from payment of American income tax on earned income.

Revise Provision
Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.), committee chairman, indicated that the committee tax experts already have decided that the House provision should be revised.

"It is recognized that complete elimination of this exemption was not intended to apply to bona fide American residents of foreign countries, who have taken on obligations there, but there is need for treatment so that American taxpayers are not required to pay income taxes," he said.

Maurice T. McGovern, speaking for the American Chamber of Commerce in Cuba, said the House provision would have a disastrous effect on American trade in Latin America.

"Our foreign commerce would be reduced towards a mail order basis," he said.

"If Americans abroad must pay American income tax on their earnings abroad, they will not be competing on an equal basis with foreigners on the United States. With American income taxes to pay, American business abroad will rapidly pass to the hands of foreigners or foreign corporations."

MAN TAKEN ILL AT BRICK WORKS

Hospital authorities stated today that a man, giving the name of Frank Stevenson, aged about 65 years, is in a serious condition, but that little is known of the circumstances surrounding his illness.

He is said to have formerly resided at the county home and to have worked about farms in the district. He was found ill at the Fenati Brick Works yesterday morning, where he was seized with a vomiting spell and later seemed to become paralyzed to the extent that he could not talk. Mr. Fenati notified county authorities and Sheriff Badger had him removed to the hospital.

He was able to talk a little today, but told the hospital people little about himself.

ADULTS BURGLED

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 5.—Clarence Wacker, 19 today had admitted according to Chief of Police William Stuart he was shot in the right side as he fled from a service station near Warren, O. when he was discovered burglarizing the office.

Police from Trumbull County, O. were called when Sharon officials doubted Wacker's story that he accidentally shot himself while cleaning a gun. The youth, whose condition is not serious, also has confessed other robberies in this section, police said.

His shots say most of our guns are inferior to Germany's, and the government remains silent. Our people have a right to know the truth—good or bad.

Do people love their country, or only the nice soft snap their country has provided? Well, which are they trying to save?

WOMAN INJURES HAND

Mrs. David Onasch of R. F. D. No. 7, suffered a laceration of the right index finger Tuesday morning when her hand was caught in an electric wringer while she was washing. She was treated at the Jameson Memorial hospital.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5.—Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today had authorized sale of the bankrupt Old Reliable Brewing Company, at Greensburg, to Abraham Greenstein, of East St. Louis, Ill., for $24,600. Officers were M. J. Adams and T. O. Murphy, both of Jeannette, Pa.

But if millions of women can take up war work without disrupting home life, what have they been doing all the time?

London Reports Pogrom In Paris

Claim Nazis Conduct A Roundup Of Jewish Women And Girls In Sports Arena

By LEO V. DOLAN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Aug. 5.—Ominous dispatches received in London Tuesday night indicated that the hand of Nazi savagery has descended upon Paris in unprecedented fury and that a pogrom is under way that already has taken a heavy toll.

Reuter's (British) news agency quoted a Zurich newspaper as saying that women, young girls and children were the chief victims of the new Nazi ruthlessness, although it was assumed their menfolk had been arrested and carted off to Nazi Germany for work in slave labor battalions.

Against Jews
The pogrom apparently was directed chiefly against Jews and their families and may indicate a determination by the Nazis to wipe out all elements of French life who might lend a helping hand to American and British troops in event of invasion.

Hundreds of girls, young mothers and their children were herded in the great indoor sports arena of Paris, the Velodrome D'Hiver, with hardly room to sit down and no sanitary arrangements whatever, the Zurich report said.

Outbreaks of scarlet fever and measles were frequent. Many of the prisoners died and numerous premature births occurred.

The Zurich report told only of the roundup of girls and women but it was assumed their men folk had been arrested and prodded into joining labor battalions in Germany.

Chief victims of the outrage appeared to be Jews and Jewesses. Sympathetic French were said to be hiding whole Jewish families in unoccupied premises.

Leap From Windows
Coincident with the pogrom, in which mothers were said to be leaping from the windows of their homes with their children, choosing death in preference to arrest, Reuter heard from Stockholm that all police leaves had been cancelled.

Stockholm said it was rumored that all prefects and sub-prefects of the French administration had been forbidden to leave their residences or offices.

This would indicate that the apparent roundup of dissident patriots was being carried out only by German troops and Gestapo police, with the French authorities helpless to lend even a semblance of mercy to the outrage.

Stockholm said that chief of government Pierre Laval would appeal to the people shortly to give no help to the Allies in event of invasion.

Drop Bonus Plan At Westinghouse

Firm Says Higher Taxes, Lower Profits Force Abandonment

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5.—Lower profits and higher taxes were cited Tuesday by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company as the reason for abandonment of its six-year-old bonus plan, under which all employees shared in the company's earnings over and above their regular paychecks.

"This action is necessary on account of recently enacted laws providing for the renegotiation of contracts with the government, and sub-contracts relating thereto, and the refund of profits, which will prevent the company from reporting definite figures monthly or even yearly," A. W. Robertson, chairman, said. "Other changes in the company's profit and taxes emphasize the necessity for discontinuance of the plan."

Introduced by Westinghouse in 1936, the adjusted compensation plan has added varying amounts to the employees' paychecks, ranging as high as 16 per cent of their regular pay. Due to declining profits and the rapidly increasing number of participants, however, the payments have dropped sharply, and last month amounted to only one per cent.

Federal Grand Jury Scans Army Awards To Clothing Firms

Three-Day Probe Into Alleged Fraud Opens At Philadelphia

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—Under the direction of Special Assistant Attorney General M. H. Goldsheim, a federal grand jury yesterday launched an investigation into alleged fraud and contract irregularities by clothing firms holding army contracts.

Goldsheim declined to disclose details of the fraud charges, which reportedly accuse certain contractors of misappropriating cloth and other materials furnished by the army.

Goldsheim said that he had 20 witnesses under subpoena who would testify in the present three-day probe. The jury temporarily suspended its investigation into alleged collusive bidding in connection with rehabilitation of Cramp's Shipyard in this city.

The prosecutor refused to indicate the extent of the asserted frauds and declined to comment on published reports that Uncle Sam has lost millions of dollars in contract irregularities. It was reported that the so-called frauds were of nationwide scope.

Previously, Justice Department officials asked citizens who have knowledge of contract irregularities to report such cases immediately. The War Frauds Department operates continuously for the duration.

Kanzler Slated For WPB Deputy Post

Edsel Ford's Brother-In-Law
Will Be In Charge Of Program Progress

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Ernest Kanzler, automotive production chief and Detroit regional director, will be named deputy chairman of the War Production Board in charge of program progress, WPB officials said yesterday.

The position is the only major job unfilled since Chairman Donald M. Nelson recently "realigned" the WPB organization to fit it for its new task of channeling the flow of materials to the nation's expanding production centers.

Kanzler's assignment, one of the toughest jobs in the war production picture, will be to keep production of planes, tanks and guns in balance; to foresee and prevent bottlenecks from developing in the production machinery.

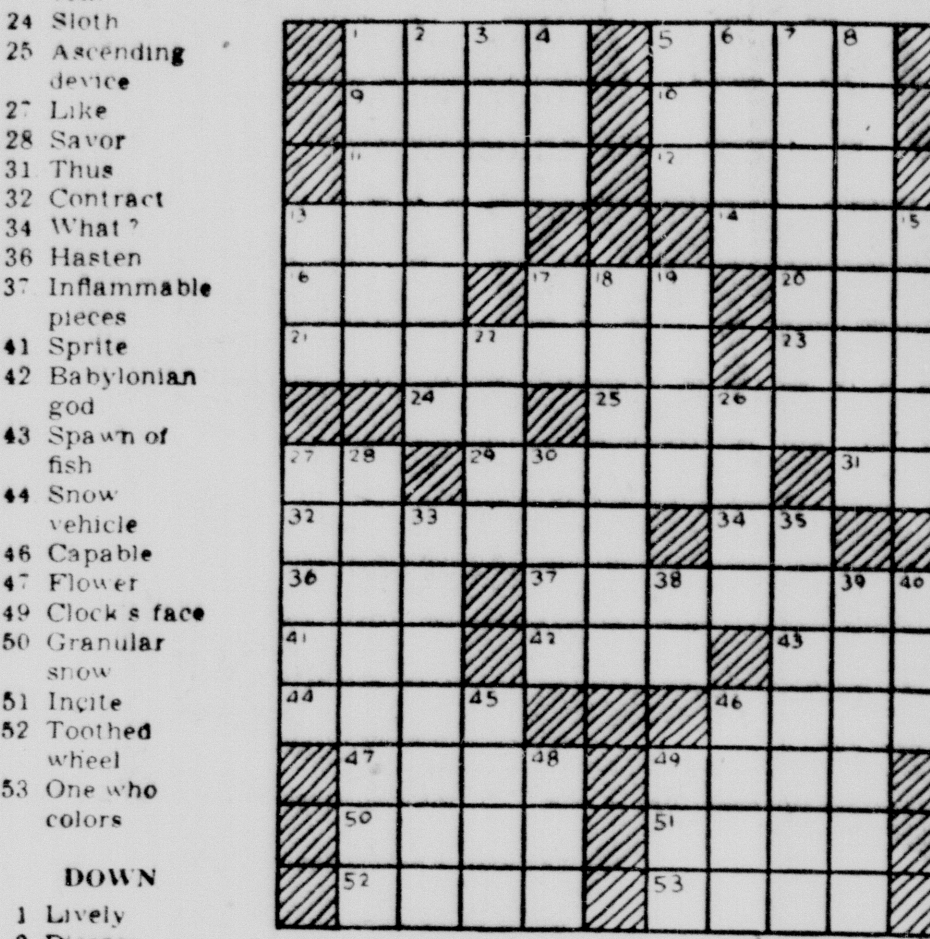

A brother-in-law of Edsel Ford, Kanzler formerly was Ford's vice-president in charge of production. He also was founder and president of the Universal Credit Corporation.

Just wait, you Huns and Japs. When the election is over, our big shots will have the courage to make war.

SLOVAKS GET 2 HITS, MANAGE TO WIN, 3-2

Surprises were commonplace in the City Baseball league Tuesday night as the eight rivals stepped close toward the finish strip.

One of the biggest upsets of the second half race was registered on Cedar street grounds where the cellar-dwelling Lawrence Indies jolted the high riding Moose club, 4-3.

Up on Marshall field, West Pittsburgh lost a golden opportunity to gain a tie for first place by dropping a 6-5 verdict to the Elders. The Slovaks remained in the chase by flattening a faltering Bessemer aggregation 3-2. Ellwood City spanked Croton, 4-3, at Ellwood City.

CENERA MAIN GUY

In kayoing the league leading Moose, the Indies played sensationally and won after spotting the Roderbaughmen three runs in the fourth.

In the fifth, the Indies deadlocked the count and tallied the winning run in the sixth. Savage took the rubber for the winners, giving up five hits. Haun, for the Moose, turned in a four hitter.

Cenera was the main guy, figuring in every infield play. Baka, who doubled in the sixth and hit in the winning run, was the hitting hero.

HALL WINS FIRST

After an absence of a year and Gang ganged up on the Elder Pitcher for three runs. The victory lifted the Elders in third within reaching distance of the leader.

Manager George Byak added Hall's name with a triple. Weisz did even better, smashing a double and a triple.

With Hall apparently set to hurl regularly, the Elders stand an excellent chance of nailing the banner.

The Slovaks crossed home plate three times in the third and called it a night. Bessemer tallied in the first and in the third. Anderson, star Slovak pitcher, spread a half dozen hits judiciously. Tomasello and Calderaro divided the tossing chores for the losers.

Union Urges Men To Keep Working

Will Not Protect Workers Failing To Report Without Legitimate Reason

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 5.—Workmen in local industries failing to report for work regularly without a legitimate reason, will receive no protection from the union in case of discharge, declares a "Union Bulletin" distributed at the gates of the National Tube company by members of local 1220 today.

The bulletin states that when a number of men in any department are not on the job, the entire department is "crippled" and production is curtailed, which means a loss to other employees.

A regular meeting is also announced for Thursday evening 11:30 in the union hall, and it is expected that some action may be taken to prevent unnecessary loss of time.

"No man is criticized for laying off on account of sickness or some other unavoidable cause," said a union spokesman today, "but with the country at war and industry producing material for the armed forces, we expect every man to do his part by remaining on the job."

Union officials revealed today that Jack McKeown, organizer local 1220, has been assigned to the Cleveland area and will leave for Ohio after the meeting Thursday night.

Audubon, N. J., Fire Destroys 15 Rooms In Century Theatre

(International News Service) AUDUBON, N. J., Aug. 5.—Fifteen storage rooms in the Century theater in Audubon were destroyed and five stores were damaged today by a stubborn two-hour fire which blanketed the vicinity with dense smoke.

Firemen worked in relays, each squad receiving treatment for smoke exposure while the other fought the blaze. Files of a ration board in two of the burned stores escaped injury in their fire-proof cabinets, board members said.

Traffic on White Horse Pike was re-routed during the fire, which was discovered by a night watchman early this morning. An unused dressing-room wing of the theater was first affected by the flames.

GREEN ENDORSES MURRAY'S IDEA OF LABOR MERGER

conferences and urged "all possible efforts" be made to form a united labor front to win the war.

In his statement Green defined the term "organic unity," as an amalgamation of the two groups into one national labor movement, possibly under a different name. He also indicated that the railroad brotherhoods, now independent, might be brought into the united front.

Discussing the possible merger, Green declared:

"We will put forth every effort to merge the AFL and the CIO. We urge them, the CIO unions) to come back to the house of labor—the house they left in 1935. They can come back without reservations and will receive a cordial welcome."

The last peace negotiations between the two labor groups started in 1937 but were broken off in April, 1939. However, both groups have standing peace negotiations committees.

Harry C. Bates, head of the bricklayers, masons and plasterers, Daniel J. Tobin, head of the teamsters, and William L. Hutcheson, head of the carpenters, make up the AFL committee while the CIO committee comprises Murray R. J. Thomas, UAW president, and Julius Emspak of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Lewis Out

Green's acceptance of Murray's proposal tended to isolate John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, who has been at loggerheads with the CIO, which he helped establish.

After hearing Harry Bridges, president of the CIO Longshoremen's union, declare there was no lack of shipping for a second front, the UAW convention unanimously adopted a resolution calling on President Roosevelt "to issue necessary orders that preparations begin immediately for the launching of a second front in western Europe."

A resolution on the "equality of sacrifice" program split the convention, and Chairman Thomas, without calling for a count, ordered the proposal back to committee for amendment.

Craige Compares Two World Wars

Credits Russia With Being Factor That Decided World War One

By CAPT. JOHN H. CRAIGE
Written Especially For International News Service
Twenty-eight years ago today the armies of the Kaiser's Germany marched into Belgium to begin the World War of 1914-18, while on the eastern front the crack First and Second armies of Czarist Russia got under way for their invasion of East Prussia. This was to contribute the diversion of strength that rendered possible the Allied victory of the Marne.

War Partners
War between Germany and Russia was declared on August 1, 1914, and two days later France came in as a Russian partner under the terms of the Franco-Russian understanding. On August 4 Britain entered the war because of the violation of Belgian neutrality. Timing in the Allied camp was perfect. That effect undiminished the greatest strategic difference between the war of a generation ago and the vast global struggle of today, a difference freighted with incalculable consequences.

Carl Von Clausewitz, great German philosopher of war, a century ago wrote that war is an extension of diplomacy in international politics but diplomacy, he said, may set up the cards for war in such a way as to have a vast influence on success or failure. Bringing Russia, France and Britain simultaneously into the first World War against Germany was the supreme diplomatic feat that paved the way for the victory of 1918.

Careful Diplomacy
Generally lost sight of in the roar of battle was the long and careful campaign of diplomacy of Britain's Edward VII that united the three great early World War allies. Edward always distrusted his megalomaniac cousin the Kaiser. Starting a dozen years before 1914, he forged the bonds that united Russia and France with Britain. It is not too much to say that Edward won World War I in the halls of the diplomats and statesmen.

From the beginning, Germany was caught between two major battle fronts manned by armies of approximately equal strength. German historians united in naming this strategic fact as the cause of the Kaiser's ultimate defeat.

Germany, then as now, had the world's most powerful and best equipped army. Given time to concentrate on either front, it seems certain that she could have won the war hands down. But she was never given an opportunity for such concentrated action.

Larger Army
Then as now, Russia had an army bigger than that of the Germans and of magnificent fighting qualities. The Slav has always been a warrior second to none. In the first World War, as today, his valor and devotion amazed the world. Repeatedly Russian offensives saved the day for Allied armies holding the line in Belgium and France. Meantime, the fine French army, intellectual elite of the military world, had time to organize and the growing strength of Britain, speedily mobilizing for war, poured millions of men and inexhaustible munitions supplies into Belgium and northern France.

Completely encircled by land cut off from overseas supplies by Britain's blockade, the Germany of the Kaiser was ground between two millstones and doomed from the beginning unless she could break through the web that bound her. That she did not break through was due to Russian armies more than to any other single force.

Russia sent more soldiers into World War I than did any other contestant. Of all the Allies, before 1918, hers were the only armies to invade German soil. The total casualties suffered by the czar's armies added up to more than 9,000,000, or a little less than the combined casualties of France, Britain and the United States.

Detached Germans
In 1914 the drive of the Russian armies into East Prussia brought about the detachment of two German army corps from the fighting in France. Had the German right wing possessed these powerful groups it might have encircled Paris. In 1915, again, an offensive by the Russian steamroller diverted strong German forces from the western front at the critical time.

Even in 1916, after the main attacking power of Russia was broken, Von Hindenburg kept 150 German divisions on the Russian front against 119 in Belgium and France, according to Russian computations. Then, as now, the Russian contribution to victory was beyond computation.
